Matrix was set up by a number of barristers looking to achieve a different working model from the traditional English chambers. Previously referred to as "a blueprint for the future of the Bar" and we are proud still of our record of innovation. We work in a modern environment where diversity and accessibility are widely championed, and outdated practice is challenged.

The members of Matrix practice in a range of different areas: UK public and private law; the law of the European Union; the European Convention on Human Rights; and public international law.

Our legal practice is multi-disciplinary. Perhaps most popularly known for our leading position in the law of human rights, Matrix members are recognised in both the major directories (Legal 500 and Chambers & Partners) as leading practitioners in twenty-four areas of law.

Matrix was established to bring together practitioners who recognise that traditional disciplines are becoming increasingly influenced by common principles of constitutional, European and international law. The linkages provide challenges and opportunities for legal practice at national, European and international level, which members are uniquely well placed to address.

The broad range of advocacy and advisory legal services that we provide, in the UK and internationally, include:

- Litigation before English and other UK courts;
- Litigation before international courts, including the European Court of Justice and European Court of Human Rights, the International Court of Justice, and the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea;
- Litigation before national and international arbitration tribunals, including the ICC, the ICSID and the UNCITRAL;
- Advice to solicitors, other law firms, Governments and public agencies, intergovernmental organisations, and commercial organisations; and
- Consultancy services on legal and policy matters.

Matrix is always happy to help facilitate in-house training and seminars.
